

Dear Dr. Shue,

Please read this letter. You may be in danger.

I'm writing because I remember you as such a kind and caring doctor. And I can't just sit by and not help you by telling you what I know. I'll try to keep it short so your certain to read it.

A friend of mine who worked with Don (your ex wife's husband) told me some skary things. I don't know Don or your ex wife myself (sorry, I don't even know her name). My friend told me they wish you were dead so they could collect life insurance. I don't understand why they would have life insurance on you, but that's what my friend told me. My friend thinks they may actually be planning something.

I don't know if they would actually hurt you, but please be careful. I had to write. If I didn't I couldn't bare the thought of something bad happening to you that I could have prevented by telling you what I heard.

If I hear anything more specific I will let you know. Please be careful. I'm sorry to worry you, but I just couldn't not write and find out later that I could have stopped a bad thing from happening.
